

One Day

One day could be great, best day of your life, but everything changes when you say good night. The next day when you have dreams and hope, it could all change in one sly gloat. Next thing you know, you are minding your own business, when someone comes and laughs. For days, weeks, which felt like years. You wonder, why me? What did I do to start this? Then you hear a familiar sound of tears which you remember dripping down your face.

You slowly turn your head, followed by your body. A small girl soaked in tears sits and cries. Soon you decide to walk up to her. Someone called her ugly, pushed her and she fell. Soon you give her a smile. You can change your past and fix her future.