

What It Would Be Like If Our Modern Day Civilization Collapsed

If modern day civilization were to collapse, I would miss comfort. Comfort like homes, running water, electricity, medicines, money and phones, cars, trains and planes, and entertainment like movies videos and videogames.

No electricity means no lights, no videogames, no computers, no television. You would have to use fire for light, pencils to write letters, play games outside or on boards. Without electricity, you would read until it got dark. You would have to learn how to build a fire.

There would be no shelter. You would have to build your own homes. You would have to create the tools to make things, like hammers, axes, pickaxes, and nails. It would be like going back to the Stone Age.

There would be no money to buy things. You would have to trade and barter for food and clothes.

There would be no government. There would be no police. You would have to protect yourself. There would be no fire department. So you would have to be very careful.

There would be no stores to buy things. You would have to learn to make clothes by yourself. You would have to find ways to make homes and wagons as well as farming equipment, chicken pens, and furniture.

There would be no farms. You would have to grow your own food and raise animals or learn how to hunt.

How I would feel about this is that I would feel happy and upset. I'd be happy because I'd start a new world and be upset because I'd lose everything.
